National Security has been providing security to thousands of individuals and families for over 75 years.

The National Security Group is a family of companies offering financial security to individuals and families throughout the South. Our property and casualty insurance and life insurance subsidiaries offer consumers a variety of insurance products ranging from homeowners to life, accident, health and annuities.

To succeed in today's economy, an insurance provider must offer personal customer service, the latest technology for agency convenience and a diverse product line with today's family needs in mind. In addition to our competitive mainstream policies, The National Security Group also offers a line of insurance products for individuals and families. Where other insurance companies have abandoned particular socioeconomic or geographic markets, we have stepped in with insurance plans, service and support for those who need it most.

Continuing our seventy-five year history of being there for our customers, The National Security Group looks for the same dedication from our agents in the community. Currently represented by over 1,800 independent agents, The National Security Group aggressively pursues new business daily by actively recruiting, training and equipping agents who share our vision for the future of our customers.

National Security agents share a commitment to serve customers with speed and reliability.

Through our online presence using software developed exclusively by National Security, agents can quickly and accurately obtain property and life quotes, issue property policies, create property endorsements and upload payments and documents on behalf of their customers.

National Security agents are backed by prompt response from our team of underwriters and claims adjusters lead by compassionate industry veterans who understand a customer's challenges and needs brought on by life-altering events. Storms in life will come and go, but because of our commitment to long-term planning, National Security will be there, responding quickly to help individuals and families rebuild their world.

Because time is important, we continually seek and implement new and more efficient methods for interaction with our customers, our agents and our employees. The National Security team of professionals strives to make your world a better place with superior service, more choices and greater peace of mind.

By insuring your world, we make it a more secure place in which to live.

We have recruited an agency force consisting of over 1,800 professionals providing insurance with reliable, caring service from offices in hundreds of large cities and small towns. We value all of our independent agents as the individuals who make that ever-important first impression with the people in their communities. From providing quick quotes and endorsements online in minutes to processing claims promptly with exceptional service, National Security stands proudly behind our independent sales force. We consider independent agents partners in our endeavor and are dedicated to providing them with the right plans, prompt service, and timely products to proudly represent us with full confidence in our commitment to customers.
